Mrs. Mary E. Blessing Summoned in Death

Sioux City Journal, 19: Mrs. Mary E. Blessing, 83 years old, a resident of Dakota county, Neb., for 4 years, died Friday morning at 1 o'clock of senility at her home in South Sioux City.

Mrs. Blessing was born in Keis Weller, Germany, April 4, 1838, and came to America with her parents when three years old. She was married to John Blessing in 1856 in the east, and came to Dakota county in 1857.

Mrs. Blessing has seen Dakota county grow from a wilderness to a productive and well settled region. She and her husband first made their home on a farm in the vicinity of what is now Homer, Neb. Later they moved to a farm near Jackson, Neb., where Mr. Blessing died about 12 years ago. Mrs. Blessing removed to South Sioux City ten years ago, where she has since resided.

Mrs. Blessing was noted for the great interest she manifested in the sick. She was in the habit of traveling miles both by team and on foot, in all kinds of weather, to care for the sick. Old time residents of Dakota county recall the trips she made on these errands.

Mrs. Blessing was the mother of 10 children, seven of whom survive, as follows: Mrs. C. Nash, Mrs. L. H. Ambright, Beatrice E. Blessing, Charles Blessing and Elmer Blessing, all of Dakota county, and Mrs. John Allen and Mrs. R. Twamley, of Allen, Neb.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the Boals Methodist Episcopal church of South Sioux City.

Home Grown Grape Plants

The grape vine is one of the easiest fruit plants to propagate, according to the horticulture specialists of the College of Agriculture. Any amateur can grow them at home. For filling a vacancy in a vineyard the easiest and surest way is to leave a cane unpruned on a neighboring vine. In the spring lay the vine down and cover with three to four inches of loose dirt that part which is in the place where a new vine is wanted. By fall the covered part will have produced sufficient root growth to allow the parent cane to be cut away. If several plants are desired the entire cane may be covered with dirt. Nearly every bud will produce a plant. The following spring the plants may be separated with a sharp spade and transplanted. For producing plants in greater numbers, cuttings are usually used. This fall, canes that grow this year are cut into lengths of two or three buds each. The cut at the lower bud is made 1/2 inch from the bud and at the upper bud 1/2 inch from the bud. Use canes the thickness of a pencil with joints three to six inches apart. Tie the cuttings in bundles of ten or fifteen and bury in the garden with the butt ends up. The ends should be covered with three or four inches of dirt and when freezing weather comes on they may be either placed in moist sand in a cool cave or left out doors and mulched with straw or other litter. This practice promotes the growth of callous over the cuts. In the spring they should be planted in nursery rows six or eight inches apart in the row with rows 2 1/2 or 3 feet apart, one bud being left right at the surface of the ground, the other underground.

THOUGHTLAND

Wandering back in Thoughtland, It seems but yesterday We trod the flowery paths of youth, Passing the time away. Without a thought of the time to be We gazed out to sea, Drifting along on the flowing tide To the harbor of Liberty.

Wandering back to Thoughtland, Through the mists of years, Life was one long golden dream, Free from cares and fears, When hearts were young and tender, Laughter was our share, Around us buds and blossoms, Growing everywhere.

Wandering back to Thoughtland, The sky was ever blue, Every cloud was silver-lined, Every heart-throb true, Building castles in the air Every breathing day, Life was just a fairy dream— We thought it was for aye.

Wandering again in Thoughtland, All things faded with gray, We tread the daily path of life Secure, since it's the way, Love gladdens every step we take, Helps us bear each load, Trusting the way we're traveling Will some day lead to God. —Toronto Mail and Empire.

EARLY-DAY POSTAL SERVICE

Devices Employed Seem Somewhat Crude Now, but They Served the Purpose Centuries Ago.

Most people regard the post as a modern institution; yet this is not so, for regular postal services have existed for more than two thousand years.

One of the earliest systems for the delivery of letters was established by Persia more than two centuries before the Christian era.

In these days letters were not written on paper. They took the form of short sticks, on which a message was inscribed either by means of paints, or by burning it on with a kind of primitive poker-work outfit. These letters were delivered by regular relays of postmen over thousands of miles of country.

Even the telegraph was in use in a crude form. Messages could be sent in an hour or two over distances of hundreds of miles by means of a system of shuttles, who passed them on from one to the other.

Georges Wears a "He Corset."

Georges Carpenter has adopted the "he corset"—the newest thing in wear for men, according to a Paris dispatch in the New York Sun.

From time immemorial Frenchmen have worn the old-fashioned "gaiters." During the war they discovered the advantage of the belt as worn by Americans. But the manufacturers went the Americans one better, and are making them about four inches wide, in fancy stamped leather or embroidered canvas and advertising them as "a great aid to the manly form."

Maurice Chevalier, the comedian, has also adopted the new style.

Houses Without Chimneys Planned.

In a housing scheme which includes the building of a number of five-roomed houses to be let at 25s a week each, in one of the northern English towns, it is proposed entirely to eliminate chimneys.

The money saved will be spent in installing electric equipment, consisting of fires, kitchen range and the like. The kitchen range will possess an elevated oven, so that no stooping is necessary.

There is already a "chimneyless" colony on the outskirts of Glasgow, the houses being occupied chiefly by artisans.

Hen Paid for Her Passage.

One Saturday night a few weeks ago, a minister stayed overnight at a farmhouse in Brockville, Ont. The next morning when he was about to leave, he found a hen in his buggy, he put her out, then got his horse and hitched up and drove to Green Bay, about ten miles, and tied his horse in the church shed. After service he got into the buggy and drove to a near-by home for dinner. When he went to get the halter out of the buggy, he was surprised to find Mrs. Hen sitting there with an egg under her.

Remarkable Leghorn.

A White Leghorn that crowed like a rooster after laying an egg was owned by a Vancouver man. The bird laid two eggs a day, one normal egg in the morning and one, without a shell, in the afternoon. Every third day it didn't lay. So constant and weird was the crowing that the hen had to be killed, as it frightened the other fowls.
